U.S. Seen Ready To Aid Aswan Project

AMSTERDAM.—
An oil refinery is to be built in Jordan by a Dutch firm, Comprimo Ltd. The oil to be refined by it will come from the oil pipeline from Saudi Arabia which runs through Jordan territory. According to a contract with Arameo, Jordan is allowed to take from it 200,000 tons annually.

Comprime Ltd. will first draw up a report on the cost of this project. If this report meets with the approval of the Jordan Government, the Amsterdam firm will work out the plans and also have the supervision of the carrying out of the project.

Jordan Holds Two Jews as Spies

Jews as Spies

Two Jews were detained last week in the Ghor area near Jenin, when important documents including maps were found on them, according to a report in the Old City daily, "Falastin."

The Jordan authorities, meanwhile, have discovered what they called a pro-Israel espionage rame area, the paper said. Two villagers detained were found to be in possession of a letter from the "Israel Espionage Service" blaming them for not sending reports when due although their pay had been transmitted.

Britain Opposes Egypt On Sudan Supervision

On Sudan Supervision

LONDON, Sunday (Reuter).—

Britain is to take up with Egypt that country's decision to issue without consultation invitations to the seven nations of the Sudan Supervisory Commission to begin their work, a Foreign Office spokesman said here yesterday.

Diplomatic quarters here regard the issue of the invitations to the seven states represented on the Commission as premature, because the Commission's terms of reference have not yet been agreed between Britain and Egypt.

The British Government, the spokesman said, felt that Britain and Egypt, the powers which had administered the Sudan sface—1899, must take account of the fact that the Sudan Government had expressed a wish to depart from the self-determination procedure laid down in the Angio-Egyptian agreement of February, 1953, and had requested a plebiscite.

Abba Khoushy Critical Of Haifa's Buildings

Jerusalem Post Buresu HAIFA, Sunday. — Opening of the Town Council debate on planning, building and beautifying the city today, Mayor Abba Khoushy said he regretted that there were no laws restricting any engineer undertaking architectural or building work.

He said that in Haifa most people "can see what's cooking at the neighbour's." There was great erowding and "no privacy,
no air and no peace." The roofs, too, were ugly, and many served
as scrap heaps, he added.

Included in the master plan were houses of 20 storeys, and two 10-storey buildings to house foreign experts would soon be built in western Haifa. The Mayor became very poetic in describing the beauty of Arab villages, and suggested to the many architects attending tonight's session that they adopt the oriental style in their planning.

ing architects. He called for an "absolute revolution" in building in the city, "for we have to retain its beauty and character." All resources must be exploited to complete the Haifa master plan, the Mayor concluded.

The discussion of the plan will sontinued next week.

TEL AVIV, Sunday. — Israel's first off well at Heletz is expected to produce between 500 and 600 barrels daily when the flow begins, touring members of the United Jewish Appeal study mission were told when they visited the site this afternoon. A new pasteurising plant will be set in Jerusalem within a few weeks, it was learned from economic sources in Jerusalem yesterday.

The plant was originally planned to operate in Haifa, but when UNICEF representatives found that there was no place available to build the plant there, they approved Thuva's suggestion that it be built in Jerusalem.

The new plant should provide a third of the city's milk requirements. Meanwhile the supply of pasteurized milk from Tel Aviv has been reduced as the demand there is increasing. It is understood that Haifa will not receive pasteurized milk for at least a year owing to the lack of premises for a pasteurising plant.

These attitudes form no part of Israel's policy; they never have and never will. That is the essential difference on which the U.N. should concentrate.

Where there are no differences of opinion, there is no meed for negotiations. The whole point of the U.N. and of its Charter is that where there are differences of opinion and conflicts of interests it is by peaceful means and by them alone, that they ought to be settled, and that there is a duty to settle them. The people of Israel will judge the effectiveness of the U.N. by what it does in our own area to insist that this central principle of the Charter be upheld. The world as a whole could find to more incisive test of the J.N.'s massing. For if peace is not won in the Middle East, it cannot be protected elsewhere. In praying for the security of our country, we may today add a prayer that the member states of the United Nations will fellow the course charted at San Francisco ten years ago, in the conviction that in human history sacrifice of principle has always been the most inexpedient and tangents and the most inexpedient and tangents.

NON-recognition can cut two ways, or so at least one leading Jordanian has recently decided. He is Lieutenant-Colonel Mohammed Ishah, of the Jordan Delegation to the Mixed Armistice Commission. It seems that by an oversight, this paper con-himself or, more likely, herself, to the King David Hotel tomorrow afternoon will be able to see the new line interpreted by three-Jerusalem firms, in clothes, furs and shoes, and help out WIZO at the same time. The line is indeed remarkably new and a little involved, and some of it perhaps easier to look at on a model than to contemplate wearing. And then there are the colours. Some of them are most attractive, but the trouble is that nobody knows what to call them. The raincoat was easy. Just gold, and very nice, too. Then there was a suit, with a stole that unexpectedly buttons down the front. Lime? No, pale mustard, the maker said. No, more like olive. Or perhaps pale amber? Too brown, amber is more red. Officially, the colour la new beige, but probably you had better go and see for yourself. And sapphire mink. By costs around 11.2000, so your choice is between that and 18 Israel-made machine gins.
